In a rapidly evolving technological age - rental makes economic sense

In today's rapidly evolving technological age, buying your AV equipment means you risk it becoming outdated before you've got the full value out of your investment. A good solution to this – and as a way of keeping your AV equipment off your balance sheet - is to rent your AV equipment instead of buying it.

With Teljoy Audio Visual, our AV equipment rental prices include delivery and installation costs, as well as maintenance and service for the full period of the contract. When it comes to financing your audio equipment rental, we offer a range of flexible financial options to suit your budget and your needs. All contracts are settled directly with us rather than a bank or another third party, and, depending on your credit rating, you won't need to pay a deposit or have any initial capital outlay.

Even when renting audio visual equipment, many customers find that their hardware falls behind industry norms even by the end of the rental period. As a solution to this, we give you main AV equipment rental options:

1. Our Technology Refresh programme lets you upgrade equipment or technology so that you stay abreast of latest industry trends throughout your rental period
2. Our Resign Rental agreement lets you retain existing technology or equipment at a discounted rate while still receiving service and maintenance.
3. Alternatively, you can also exercise the Option to Purchase agreement at a nominal fee that is pre-determined at the start of the agreement.
